Official Bio

Nikki Roberts is an author, speaker, entrepreneur, and faith-filled encourager whose message is rooted in faith, restoration, resilience, and the power of getting back up. Through honest storytelling, biblical truth, and encouragement, Nikki inspires women to recognize their God-given worth, move beyond the circumstances that have tried to define them, and boldly walk in the life and purpose God has for them.

Nikki's message was shaped by a life that has required her to get back up more than once. As a young girl, she spent part of her childhood as a ward of the state, living in foster homes and group homes. Her journey would later include seasons of loss, infertility, waiting, motherhood, forgiveness, health challenges, and a cancer diagnosis - experiences that deepened her faith and taught her that life's hardest chapters do not have the authority to determine how the story ends.

She is the author of GET UP! How God Turns Your Darkest Moments into Miracles, a deeply personal, faith-centered book born from her own journey of trusting God through life's darkest and most defining moments. Through GET UP!, Nikki shares a message that has become central to her life: getting up doesn't always happen in one dramatic moment. Sometimes it looks like crawling. Sometimes it means making it to your knees. Sometimes you're standing but still a little shaky. And sometimes, eventually, you find yourself strong enough to run again.

Nikki has a particular heart for women who wonder if too much has happened, too much time has passed, or they've somehow missed their opportunity. She reminds them that their worth is not determined by rejection, disappointment, age, mistakes, or the circumstances they've endured. They are seen, heard, valued, needed, and loved by God - and as long as there is breath in their bodies, it is not too late to begin again.

Beyond writing and speaking, Nikki is an entrepreneur and creative who spent more than a decade working in the wireless communications industry before building her own custom decor business and expanding into digital content creation. She is also a homeschool mother who believes deeply in lifelong learning, challenging yourself to try something new, and having the courage to finish what you start.

At the center of Nikki's life are her faith and her family. She is a devoted wife and mother of two children she prayed for, and she describes herself as a lifelong student who is still learning, still growing, still trusting God, and still becoming.

Whether through her writing, speaking, or everyday conversations, Nikki's mission is simple: to help women believe that their story isn't over, there is still purpose ahead, and no matter how hard life has knocked them down, with God, they can get back up.

THE BOOK

GET UP!

How God Turns Your Darkest Moments into Miracles

GET UP! is a deeply personal, faith-centered account of how God can meet us in life's darkest moments and transform pain, waiting, loss, unexpected detours, and uncertainty into purpose.

Through Nikki's own journey, readers are reminded that getting up does not always mean instantly becoming strong. Sometimes it begins with one decision, one prayer, one step, or simply refusing to let the place where you fell become the place where your story ends.

Signature Themes

GET UP: From the Floor to Forward

A faith-centered message about what it really means to rise after disappointment, loss, fear, or a season that has knocked you down - even when progress begins on your knees.

It's Not Too Late

Encouragement for women who believe too much time has passed, they've missed their opportunity, or their age, mistakes, or circumstances have disqualified them from purpose.

Faith in the Waiting

Trusting God when the answer has not come yet, the path does not make sense, and faith is being tested in the space between prayer and promise.

Restoration, Forgiveness & Wholeness

A message about healing beyond the surface - spiritually, emotionally, relationally, and personally - without pretending the process is instant or easy.

The Courage to Finish

For dreamers, starters, creatives, mothers, and women with unfinished ideas: learning, stretching, beginning again, and having the courage to complete what God placed in your hands.

Nikki's speaking can be tailored for women's events, churches, conferences, podcasts, panels, book conversations, and faith-centered gatherings.

Suggested Interview Questions

1. Why do you say you “wrote your first book by mistake”?
2. What does “getting up” look like when someone does not feel strong yet?
3. How did your childhood as a ward of the state shape the woman you became?
4. What have infertility and motherhood taught you about faith, waiting, and answered prayer?
5. Why is restoration a more accurate word for your story than simply resilience?
6. How did a cancer diagnosis change the way you looked at life and faith?
7. What would you say to a woman who believes it is too late to begin again?
8. You joke that you had a “PhD in starting things and not finishing them.” What changed when you decided to finish GET UP!?
9. How do you reconcile strong faith with unanswered prayers and seasons when God seems quiet?
10. What do you hope a woman believes about herself after hearing your story?
